Our Conference

Supporting Youth with Asperger Syndrome or Autism Spectrum Disorder Who are Being Bullied

Learn from an expert who presents information from a Canada-wide survey on bullying in youth with Autism Spectrum Disorders. There will be discussions on the different types and rates of bullying experienced by youth with ASD and the risk factors and mental health impact of bullying victimization. Strategies that can be used by youth, their parents, teachers, and schools will be reviewed.

Jonathan A. Weiss, Ph.D., Clinical Psychologist and Assistant Professor in the Department of Psychology at York University.

His research focuses on the prevention and treatment of mental health problems in people with autism spectrum disorders and/or intellectual disabilities across the lifespan.

"That's Just Plain Rude! Modern Guidelines for Civility at Work..Dealing with Bullying in the Workplace"

Whether it's email rudeness, unprofessional dress, poor service attitude or ineffective communication skills, incivility at work directly impacts our self-esteem, our relationships, our health and our productivity. And, in a work-world where downsizing, recession, labour shortages, demographic and other issues are common, rudeness sometimes becomes bullying and aggression.

Lew Bayer has been nationally recognized as Canada's leading expert on civility in the workplace. She is founder and Executive Director of the Center for Cultural Competence, CEO of civilityexperts.com, and President of the International Civility Trainers' Consortium.

A 7-time published author and national columnist, Lew is regularly called upon for expert editorial commentary in her field.
